Nate Brumley, author of Addicted to the Rise and Winter on a Dry Fly has fished the winter season for over 35 years. It is his favorite time of year to serve a dry fly. In that time he has never sunk a nymph or fished a streamer.

Brumley has mastered the art of hooking fish on a dry fly in every season of the year and that includes winter. He has an innate ability to problem solve at river level. He relishes the most difficult conditions a dry fly may be fished. Who do you know who stands on an ice shelf in 26° temperatures with a 15 MPH wind and hooks fish on a dry fly? Nate has tested the outer limits of the capability of a dry fly and in his own words, "There is no outer limit." This book will totally convince you that he's right.
